REPUBLICANS TALK IT OVER

Campaign Rally Held in Montpelier Saturday

PARTY LOYALTY IS ASKED

Chairman Williams of Republican State Committee Said That He Would Be Pleased with 20,000 Majority.

A Republican campaign rally was held at the courthouse in Montpelier Saturday afternoon, when fifty town committeemen and others met the candidates on the state ticket and listened to speeches by various persons. The plea was for an old-time majority at the September election. J. A. Mead, candidate for governor; L. P. Slack, candidate for lieutenant-governor; Congressman Frank Plumley and John W. Gordon, candidate for county senator and chairman F. C. Williams were the chief speakers.

N. D. Phelps of Barre, Washington county member of the state committee, presided over the meeting, and the first speaker was chairman F. C. Williams of the state committee, and he devoted most of his address to stirring up the voters to the value of their franchise right. He said that a Republican majority of 20,000 would please the state committee very much.

Dr. Mead spoke on state issues, after reviewing the history of the national parties.

To gain a larger than average majority in Vermont this year, we must talk over the record of the parties, spread a knowledge of what the Republican party has been, what it stands for and what the other party represents. Speech making and organization will effect this end. Organization in every town and city in the state, the speaker regarded as the best and most effective means of educating the citizens. The importance to every town of a large Republican majority is manifest. It keeps up the representation in the state convention; it encourages the state and national leaders. President Taft has written to the state committee, saying that he looks to Vermont for an endorsement. The enemy rejoices over a fall in the majority. A large majority in an off year will be an incentive to renewed effort on the part of the Republican leaders the country over.

Dr. Mead then took up the platform of the party and touched upon each plank briefly. The tariff he left to Congressman Plumley to discuss. Constitutional amendments he favored, he hoped that the party would keep the promises made to the labor men, he favored the use of revenues rather than a bond issue for the upbuilding of our state highways, conservation he regarded as of first importance. As regards the liquor question, Dr. Mead stated that since 1893, on his return from the war, no liquor in any form had passed his lips. He said that he saw the evils of intemperance during his service in the army, where it was almost universal, and he had personally renounced it. He said that he had no stand of temperance and had taken part in no movement looking to that end. He had taken action in a personal way, which resulted in the closing of three saloons in Rutland. He regarded it as being up to the members of the legislature to pass the requisite liquor laws, and he said he would sign any that were presented to him. He regarded the executive and legislative departments of government as very properly separated, each with its special functions, and he was willing to perform his part if the legislature carried out theirs.

Mr. Slack, candidate for second place on the ticket, dealt with legislation. Congressman Plumley asked that the Republicans of Washington county roll up a big majority, as an incentive to the national party.

Senatorial candidate John W. Gordon talked about labor legislation, taking up chiefly the employers' liability. He took up the doctrine of fellow servant as connected with the employer's liability legislation and traced its history from the origin in England in 1836 to the present day, when nearly every state in this country and all Europe except Switzerland have abolished it, as an unjust piece of legislation. The speaker said that the friends of the law held that any other legislation would favor the laboring man as a class, while as a matter of fact the present law favors the employer as a class, and puts the dollar higher than human life. More than half the accidents are not the result of negligence of any employer, but arise from the natural risks of the business. The principle of the compensatory law, which the state platform favors, is to make the business and not the employee stand the financial burden of this risk. It is the duty of the party to take hold of this matter and give justice to the workman and his family.

Chairman Phelps of the meeting read the statement of the amounts which each town in the county is asked to raise for the campaign. It is as follows:

About the State

H. F. Goodenough picked 10 bushels of red raspberries this season from about half an acre of bushes on his land in Brattleboro. He has picked a greater quantity in former years, but never any of finer quality.

The cases of infantile paralysis, which have been in the family of W. E. Taylor, in Brattleboro, are progressing satisfactorily and it is thought all will recover, without suffering any of the after effects, which usually follow.

Automobiles owned by Col. J. G. Estey and J. E. Holden of Brattleboro, collided at a turn in that place Thursday and a serious accident was narrowly averted. The tonneau of Mr. Holden's car was badly damaged. No one was hurt and there is a difference of opinion as to the cause of the accident.

Leslie Pierce, aged 15, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Pierce of Guilford, accidentally shot himself through the right knee with a revolver Wednesday, while attending a picnic. The ball went through the knee cap and lodged in the joint. He was taken to the Parson hospital in Montague, Mass., where the piece of shattered bone was removed, as well as powder and portions of his clothing. It is expected that the boy's knee will always be stiff.

Raymond, the three and a half years old son of Merton C. Stone of South Newfane, narrowly escaped drowning August 14, when, as he was playing near the branch, he slipped from a rock into water deep enough to cover him as he fell. His younger brother, Bernard, screamed for help and his father came at once. An older playfellow, Harold Stratton, had already dragged him from the water and Mr. Stone found the child still choking and coughing.

The Snowflake canning factory will open its factory in Brattleboro about Aug. 25. The company expects to use the crop from about 400 acres and the representatives of the company who have made a tour of the territory furnishing the crop report that the quality is up to the average. The acreage is about 500. The company expects to use the crop from about 400 acres and the representatives of the company who have made a tour of the territory furnishing the crop report that the quality is up to the average.
